7.7: Supporting environmental and biodiversity protection

At JSTRAVEL, we are committed to environmental stewardship and biodiversity protection in all aspects of our operations, including tourism products that may not have a direct relationship with natural areas. While some of our tours may focus more on cultural or urban experiences, we recognize the importance of integrating sustainability practices into all our offerings. Our policy outlines our approach to promoting environmental awareness and minimizing our ecological footprint, even in contexts where direct interaction with natural areas may be limited.

Policy Overview:

- 1.Promotion of Environmental Awareness:

We incorporate environmental education components into all our tourism products, regardless of their direct relationship with natural areas. Through pre-trip communication, on-site interpretation, and educational materials, we aim to raise awareness among travelers about environmental issues and the importance of conservation efforts.

- 2.Integration of Sustainable Practices:

We integrate sustainable practices into the design and operation of our tours, focusing on reducing waste, conserving resources, and minimizing environmental impact. This may include measures such as promoting eco-friendly transportation options, encouraging responsible consumption and disposal of resources, and supporting local initiatives that promote environmental sustainability.

- 3.Support for Local Conservation Initiatives:

Even in contexts where direct interaction with natural areas is limited, we seek opportunities to support local conservation initiatives and environmental projects. This may involve partnering with community-based organizations, participating in urban greening initiatives, or contributing to environmental education programs in urban settings.

- 4.Compliance with Environmental Regulations:

We ensure compliance with relevant environmental regulations and standards, even in urban or cultural tourism contexts. By adhering to local environmental laws and regulations, we demonstrate our commitment to responsible tourism practices and environmental protection.

Examples:

For example, we may organize guided walks through historic neighborhoods while discussing sustainable urban development practices and initiatives to protect cultural heritage sites from environmental threats such as pollution or climate change.

- During city tours, we promote sustainable transportation options such as walking, cycling, or the use of public transit to reduce carbon emissions and minimize environmental impact. We provide travelers with information about local initiatives aimed at promoting sustainable urban mobility and reducing air pollution in urban areas.

- In partnership with local community organizations, we may organize volunteer activities such as urban clean-up events, tree planting initiatives, or community gardening projects. These activities engage travelers in hands-on conservation efforts while supporting local communities and fostering a sense of environmental responsibility.

Through these initiatives, JS Travel strives to promote environmental awareness and sustainability practices across all our tourism products, contributing to the protection of natural resources and the preservation of biodiversity in both natural and urban environments.

By promoting the use of refillable bottles, we aim to reduce the reliance on single-use plastic water bottles.

- 4. Encouragement of Biodegradable Packaging:

We prefer to purchase food products that are packaged in biodegradable and natural materials, such as banana leaves or compostable containers. By supporting vendors that use eco-friendly packaging alternatives, we contribute to the reduction of plastic waste and promote sustainable consumption practices.
